“Salary & Job Satisfaction Key To Malaysian Job Seekers”

Kuala Lumpur, 17 March 2010: An Adecco Malaysia on-line survey has shown that salary and job satisfaction remain of key importance to job seekers in Malaysia – surprisingly at the expense of benefits provided by companies.

The survey, which was conducted on the homepage of www.adecco.com.my, asked job seekers what is most important to them when looking for a new position, giving three answers to choose from: Benefits, Job Satisfaction or Salary.

46% of those responding to the survey stated that salary is most important to them, while 44% stated that a job that would provide a high level of satisfaction is key to them. Only 10% stated that they considered the benefits offered by a company to be the most important factor.

Anna Koh, Assistant Branch Manager, Adecco Malaysia commented “The Malaysian job seeker of today is focused, well researched and most definitely investing in their future. It’s not surprising that the majority of job seekers want to command a good salary – but it’s refreshing to see that they are also prioritizing job satisfaction and being happy at work. These findings all point toward a more educated and balanced workforce of the future”.
